"The Future Is Ours" takes place on the day of the 99th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution and is one of the main events organized during the yearlong program of exhibitions "The Kids Want Communism" at MoBY.

The Young Communist League (BANKI) was established in 1924, and operated as an illegal political movement during the British rule over Palestine, until 1942. The movement has been active since its inception, with Jewish and Arab youths, pupils and teenagers being educated according to the values of peace, social justice, equality, involvement in social and democratic struggles, internationalist solidarity and revolutionary change.

"The Kids Want Communism" is a yearlong exhibition project at MoBY — Museums of Bat Yam. It is held in collaboration with a host of different artists and institutions around the world, and consists of exhibitions, lectures, performances, screenings and publications throughout 2016. Collaborating institutions include: Tranzit, Prague; The Visual Culture Research Center, Kyiv; Free/Slow University, Warsaw; State of Concept, Athens; Skuc gallery, Ljubljana; and MoBY-Museums of Bat Yam. The project is organized by Vít Havránek, Vladimir Vidmar, Joshua Simon, Iliana Fokianaki, Oleksiy Radynski, and Kuba Szreder.

The current installment of "The Kids Want Communism" at MoBY includes "Year One: Jewish-Arab Brotherhood" - a compilation of photographs from the archives of MAKI (The Communist Party of Israel) documenting the party's activities in the 1940s.

As part of "The Future Is Ours" we will have a guided tour of the exhibition, a reunion of different BANKI graduates, conversations with activists from various generations, special screenings and musical performances.

The public is invited.
