“The self is only a threshold, a door, a becoming between two multiplicities.” — Gilles Deleuze & Félix Guattari

The Wave brings together seven artists whose works emerge at the intersection of individual expression and collective movement.

Each wave, each work, and each artist is a carrier of information—colors, forms, and ideas that, when combined, create new, sometimes paradoxical possibilities, like an orange apple. We observe, vibrate, and empathize with external forces that are also internal to us—our longing for justice, love, and beauty. The wave state is a spectrum of possibilities, rejecting binary oppositions. To be a wave is to resist reduction, to embrace unpredictability, and to exist in a state of becoming. We are waves—fluid, shifting, interconnected—composing an ever-changing music for the cosmos. The wave is an ongoing performance of grace, forgiveness, and creation, as when an artist loses themselves in the moment of making.

Chunbum Park

Chunbum Park, also known as Chun, is an artist and a writer from South Korea, working and living in the greater NYC area. They received their BFA in Fine Arts from the School of Visual Arts in 2020 and their MFA in Fine Arts Studio from the Rochester Institute of Technology in 2022. Park is a staff writer for the New Visionary Magazine and also contributes to other publications, including Two Coats of Paint and Art Spiel.
